

For B&R 10th January issue

By Margot Hollingdale

We will be starting our new year's programme on Thursday 11th, when Keith Noble, local Natural History recorder, will present "Looking Forward to Spring".

At 1.15pm we continue to explore the environment around us as Huw Williams will be giving us a talk entitled "The Crawshays of Cafarthfa had a Garden".

The Poetry group may stay in the winter months with readings involving "Stormy Weather". David Mitchell will be leading the Earth Science Group at 2.30pm when he will present "Lakes", their origins, transience, and fate. Also "Bookshelf" will be meeting to discuss their latest book choice, "A Town Called Solace" by, Canadian born, Mary Lawson.

That is one talk in the morning and four Special Interest Groups to choose from in one afternoon! If you are not already a member and would like to see what else Brecon u3a has on offer, then arrive at Theatr Brycheiniog at 10am for coffee, a chat, and pay £2 for the day to help cover the cost of the Theatre's facilities. If you decide to join, then Annual Membership is £35. Lots more information can be found u3asites.org.uk/brecon
